Six persons, four of them children, had a close call to death Wednesday night about 8 o'clock when a machine in which they were riding went thru a fence and into the Desplaines river at Wedsworth, as the steering knuckle of the car broke. The auto was travelling at a fair rate of speed.

The owner and driver of the car was Robert Barrett, who lives just south of Millburn, it was reported. With him at the time was his wife and three children, the children ranging in age from 5 to 9 years. A neighbor's child, 9 years old, was also along.

According to reports from Wedsworth the steering knuckle of Barrett's car broke, the car crashing through a wooden fence and plunging down an embankment of 15 feet and out into the water. When the car finally came to a stop it was about 12 feet out from the bank of the river, the depth of the water at that point being around five feet.

No one lives nearby, the nearest home to the bridge being about 80 rods away and as there was no one around the bridge Barrett rescued his wife and the children alone. Fortunately he was not hurt any and was able to get out of the car and carry his wife and children to the banks.

It was said at Wedsworth that no member of the party suffered any injuries, although all were shaken up and badly frightened.

The machine, which was damaged considerably, was lifted from the water by means of a block and tackle and was taken to the Shear garage in Wedsworth.

Coroner John L. Taylor, who is in charge of the autopsy over the body of Frank E. Dow of Waukegan, which was exhumed last Wednesday reports that all of the organs were removed and sent to Chicago to the laboratory of Dr. E. H. Fisher, engaged by the Dow family to make an analysis. It will take a week or ten days to complete the analysis, the coroner said.

Dr. Taylor said that from examination he was satisfied that splenic leukemia, the disease given as the cause of the death at the time, was a contributory cause if not the only cause.

The body was exhumed and the autopsy started last Wednesday by the coroner on order of State's Attorney A. V. Smith, after request had been made by the Dow family. None of the expense is to be paid by the county, however, Dr. Taylor says, unless the laboratory findings show a cause of death other than splenic leukemia.

One of those active in having the body disinterred was Robert Dow. He was not talkative about the purpose of the autopsy at the time, saying that he and other members of the family merely desired to ascertain the cause of death, there being some doubt in their minds as to whether or not the real cause was splenic leukemia.

Frank Dow, who was connected with his brother, Robert, in operating the Dow Manufacturing company of Waukegan for years, died August 30, 1921, after a few weeks illness.

West Kenosha County Fair Has Many Stock Entries

The fair board of the West Kenosha County fair is very busy completing arrangements for the fifth annual fair which will be held at the U. F. H. school grounds at Wilmot September 25, 26, 27. The secretary, R. T. Button of Silver Lake has received many entries for the fair. Two of special interest to stock dealers will be the four Percheron horses entered by Ludwig Brothers of Brighton, and the cattle and hogs from the Rhodesia farm. All of this stock is coming directly from making the circuit of the state. Elkhorn and Racine County fairs and much of it was awarded champion ribbons at the places.

Thursday, September 15, 1904.

The Board of Supervisors are in session this week.

Chase Webb spent Tuesday in Chicago.

Lewis Savage was transacting business in Waukegan Tuesday.

Eldora Horton who left Wednesday of last week for Chetek, Wis., returned Monday.

Miss Laura Williams will teach the Bear Hill school, beginning Oct. 9.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Emmons spent last week visiting friends at Evans-ton and Libertyville.

H. A. Radtke and family are spending the week with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Ira Soule left Saturday for a visit with her son and family in Minnesota.

Walter Taylor commenced his duties as teacher at Grinnell's school last Monday.

Miss Ruth Williams has gone to Chicago where she will again take up her studies in south division high school.

Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Anderson returned Saturday from an extended trip through Canada and the east visiting all the points of interest.

Mrs. Anderson will remain at home for the present and will resume her class in music this week.

A Junior League sub-district rally will be held in the Antioch M. E. church on Saturday, Sept. 17. The business session begins at 11 o'clock a.m. The afternoon session will consist of a program rendered by the several Leagues.

About 45 relatives and little friends of Laura O'leary met at her home, southwest of town, Saturday afternoon and helped the little lady celebrate her tenth birthday. A beautiful supper, including ice cream, cake, candy, lemonade, etc., was served, after which they all had their pictures taken. The remainder of the day was spent in games. Laura was the recipient of a number of beautiful presents. The little folks went home feeling they had spent a pleasant day.

Marked Headway Made in Illinois Road Program

Illinois is making very marked progress in road construction, even though weather conditions recently have been a source of delay. According to the construction report issued by the State Division of Highways, a total of 795 miles of pavement has been completed thus far this year. This is approximately 115 miles more than had been completed at the same time last year.

During the week ending September 4, 47,68 miles of pavement were completed, 105 paving mixers, 3900 men, and 2175 teams were employed on the highways of the state in that week.

Frank T. Sheets, chief state highway engineer, in discussing the road situation, stated:

"The people of the state are justly proud of the great strides Illinois is making in road work. While all of us appreciate the great convenience afforded by hard roads, very few realize their meaning in dollars and cents.

In recent years, there has been considerable research work conducted to learn the comparative cost of operating motor vehicles on various types of road. It has been established that, when a road carrying 600 vehicles per day, is surfaced with a high type pavement, an annual saving of approximately $6,675 per mile will be effected. All of Illinois' truck highways are carrying an average of at least 500 vehicles a day; many of them carry several times that number.

The present year will see about 1200 miles added to the state's paved road system. This year's construction alone, then, will afford a saving of approximately $8,000,000 each year for many years to come. If traffic on these roads should average 1000 vehicles per day, a figure which may reasonably be expected, the saving in one year will amount to nearly $16,000,000 annually. In comparison with such savings, interest charges for bonds to finance this road construction sink into insignificance."

Farm Bureau to Hold Mass Meeting Saturday

There will be a mass meeting of all of the breeders of purebred dairy cattle at the Farm Bureau office, Libertyville, at 8:00 p.m., Saturday, September 20. At that time an organization will be perfected to cooperate with the Illinois Holstein-Friesian association and the Lake county Farm Bureau in putting over an intensive campaign against the scrub dairy bulls in Lake county. The Illinois Holstein-Friesian association has subscribed a large fund that is to be used as a revolving fund to support the campaign on a state-wide basis. Lake county desires to be the first county in which the campaign will be launched.

Mr. Robert Geiger, secretary of the Minnesota Holstein-Breeders' association will be in Libertyville for the meeting, to present to our breeders a plan that has been successfully operating in that state for the past year and a half in eradicating the scrub dairy bulls. Several other live stock workers of National fame will also be present.

Lake county feels honored by being selected as the first county to have actual assistance from the State Holstein association in being assisted to aid our county of the worthless scrub bulls. We have an opportunity to make ourselves famous as the leading dairy county of the state by being the first to increase the number of good bulls with our dairy herds. Many cows in the county at this time will not produce 400 pounds of milk in a year, while the cows of the Netherlands and of Switzerland produce more than twice that amount. The dairy business has grown to immense proportions in the past few years, and the dairy market has become a world market. The foreign cow has become serious competition for us, as she can produce much more efficiently than can our cows, and efficient production means higher production per cow and more net profit.

The Illinois Holstein-Friesian association is willing to cooperate to the extent of putting on the campaign for all of the dairy breeds. It shows their vision. The campaign contemplates placing three men in the county for a period of from 5 weeks to 2 months to personally visit our dairy men and assist those in need of better bulls in procuring the kind of dairy sire that will mean increased production and more money for our farmers who milk cows.

The old scrub bull must be replaced. At one time, was used where there was a combination of cheap labor, cheap feed and cheap land, and surely Lake county has no such combination.

The interest that is being manifested in the meeting to date indicates that the number that are taking an interest in this movement will make the meeting of September 20 one of biggest purchased meetings ever held in the county.

AUCTION SALES FOR THE COMING WEEK

There will be an auction sale on the Karnes farm situated 2½ miles southeast of Woodworth, and 4 miles southwest of Pleasant Prairie, on today, September 18, commencing at 12:30 sharp. The sale consisting of four horses, cattle hogs, fowls, feed and a number of other articles. Wm. Kasten is the proprietor, and L. J. Slocum has the selling of this sale. Ed Powell will be the clerk.

There will be a sale Saturday, September 20, at the S. A. Rice farm, located ¼ mile east of Grayslake, on the county road; all farm goods will be sold; L. J. Slocum will be the auctioneer.

There will be an auction sale on the Dolan farm, situated 4 miles northwest of Zion, 2½ miles east of Roscrans, on Tuesday, September 23, commencing at 12:30 o'clock sharp, consisting of horses, cattle, fowls, wagons, machinery, harness, and a quantity of hay and grain. R. E. Pfeiffer is the proprietor and L. J. Slocum is the auctioneer with J. G. Welch being the clerk.

There will be a sale Wednesday, September 24, on the farm known as the Lon Hill farm, located 3 miles southeast of Woodworth and 5 miles southwest of Pleasant Prairie, at 12:30 p.m. Livestock, feed, implements, etc., will be sold. L. J. Slocum will be the auctioneer and Mark Castle the clerk.

ADVERTISING A FARM SALE

How much should a farmer spend to properly advertise his auction?

That is a question that only can be determined by the amount of property he has to sell.

The other day A. T. Midje, a farmer who lives 12 miles north of Boyceville, came in to advertise his auction of pure bred cattle, horses, farm machinery, etc.

Here's how he did it.

First he ordered 200 sale bills; 1575 were sent through the mails in specially printed envelopes; the balance were posted in various banks, stores and other business places in ten different towns.

Second: He ordered large display cards in six country papers.

The total cost of his advertising bills and one cent government envelopes amounted to within a few cents of $100.

With his auction advertising in the six newspapers and the 1575 sale bills that he mailed, he reached nearly 12,000 farmers.

And of course the folks will wonder where the 1500 buyers came from.

Advertising, my friend, turned the trick.—Boyceville Press.

Two Seriously Injured in Lake Villa Auto Crash

A rather serious accident occurred Saturday afternoon at Pester's corner when a Chicago machine and a Ford truck, driven by young Williamson of Fourth Lake met in a rear end collision. The Chicago machine was turned turtle and pinned the occupants under it. Two of the men were injured very seriously but the third escaped without a scratch.

The driver of the Chicago car was held down by the running board in such a manner that it cut off his teeth and also his breathing. The car was raised up and the men were cared for by a passing physician. The car was a total wreck but the Ford truck was undamaged and the driver uninjured.

The ducks this year are flying heavier than have been seen in this section for a number of years and there should be some real sport.

Pete Malsack, agent at the Soo Line depot was arrested and taken to Kenosha Saturday evening. He was unable to make up the shortage the mailman found in his accounts.

TOM BURNETTE SEEKS JURORS

Tom Burnette, our local member of the Sheriff's road police, was wandering around town Wednesday evening with a bunch of jury notices in his hand. He was unfortunate (?) in finding a few out of town on a vacation.

Trap Shoot and Clam Bake at Rothers' Sunday

Through the initiative of the local Winchester dealer, Williams Bros., and Butch Rothers arrangements have been made with the Winchester Repeating Arms Company for the appearance here next Sunday at Rothers' Resort, Grass Lake of Benny Meents, of Ashland, Ill., for a shooting program and talk on guns and ammunition.

Meents is one of the youngest of professionals, being only 25 years of age. His age doesn't prohibit him from being a great shooter. He was the doubles trapshooting champion of the United States in 1923 and is the present singles and all-round champion of Illinois. This is his second year in succession to hold the Illinois titles.

He won this year with a score of 199 out of 200, the best score of the year. In the Prairie Zone shoot Meents was high over all the shooters with 757 breaks in 800 targets. It is customary for Meents to be high gun in the shoots he participates in. He was high in no less than five state championships in 1923 and had a number of runs better than 200.

On the 525 targets that Meents shot in 1918 he averaged 8430. In 1919 Meents shot at 2125 targets for an average of .9294 and improved so much that he tied for the class L championship in the Grand American Handicap, breaking 99x100. In 1920 he averaged .9598 on 4760 targets and had a high run of 218. In 1921 Meents shot at 2125 targets for an average of .9294 and improved so much that he tied for the class L championship in the Grand American Handicap.

In 1922 Meents won the doubles championship of the Great Lakes Zone with 36 in 50 pairs and finished the year with an average of .9663 on 2260 targets.

In 1923 he averaged .9695 on 4010 single targets and .8537 on 800 double targets. He will be up in the front ranks of the shooters again this year.

All his shooting has been done with a Winchester Model 12 and Repeater shells.

The shoot will commence at 10:00 o'clock sharp.

At 12:00 o'clock a real Rhode Island clam bake will be given by Butch Rothers. Butch has secured the services of Louis Hauserman, who has the reputation of being the best in putting on a clam bake. Mr. Hauserman is coming from the east on other business but will stop over and put on the clam bake for Butch.

Those who have never attended a clam bake will do well to take this in. It is a real treat and one not to be forgotten. Mr. Hauserman will include in the bake, clams, bluefish, chicken, sweet corn, Irish potatoes, sweet corn and clam bullion.

Ducks Aplenty as the Season Opens Here

The hunting season opened with a bang early Tuesday morning and it was not long after sunrise that many of the hunters had secured their quota and were hustling home to get their first taste of duck for the season.

The ducks this year are flying heavier than have been seen in this section for a number of years and there should be some real sport.

Survey Dairy Situation in Illinois Region

One third of all the dairy cows in the state of Illinois is losing money, a third is making up for what the first third is losing, and the other third is reaping profits for their owners, according to a survey of the state dairy situation, just completed by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. Better feeding and better breeding is the solution of this problem, the Institute experts declare.

"The state of Illinois," continues the report of the Institute, "has dairy cows in milk on 77 per cent of her farms. In 1880 the state had 8.96 per cent. In 1910 the state had 102 heads of all kinds of cattle per one thousand acres of improved land. Now in 1924, it has only 87 head. A few head more or less matters little. Have they improved in fourteen years? What will they be fourteen years from now? These are the questions on which the Institute's experts will enlighten the farmers."

"Farmers want happiness and contentment. To get it they must make money. There are two ways of doing this—get more money for what they produce or lower cost of production.

A quarter saved in the grain cost of producing a hundred pounds of milk by feeding better milk making grain rations, a dime saved per one hundred pounds of pork, or dozen eggs, is money for the farmer. We don't need more cows, hogs or hens. We need better ones. More efficient animals mean lowered cost of manufacturing one hundred pounds of milk, pork, poultry, beef, mutton and eggs.

"The average cow in Illinois makes only 3044 pounds of milk, and only 2.4 per cent of all the dairy cattle in the state are purebred. Better feeding will raise production and lower costs per hundred pounds of milk.

The daughters of good cows, sired by purchased bulls, will increase that production and further lower costs of production.

The same is true with other animals. In 1919, the peak year, only 12 per cent of the entire state's income went to farmers. That is not enough," the Institute's experts point out.

There has been a rising tide of popularity in intensive farming.

As agriculture is brought face to face with higher costs of production and farmers find that they cannot get by on highest priced land, it has been necessary to turn to diversification.

Inflation has made every hawker and farm leader see these things.

"We have the goods on them now," said Mr. Perry. "Further violations will simply mean an aggravated case of the brewery will be taken away on top of it."

And so another of the fifty remaining breweries in the state, licensed to make near beer, will be stricken from the list, shut down and placed under government seal, under provisions of the Volstead act "pablock" clause.

The brewery which is involved in the Burlington beer running is said to have done a land office business in a short period of operating.

Whole caravans of trucks are said to have carried its products to the towns and cities along the highways radiating from the city.

Truck drivers who hauled to Milwaukee were paid $1 per case. Their trucks often carried 250 and 300 cases. The work was done at night.

In one instance, it is reported, a five truck laden with nine tons of beer broke through a culvert at a city outside of Burlington. This resulted in tying up the entire caravan.

"We know that there are a number of breweries in the state that are cheating," said Mr. Perry. "Of course, with a force of only sixteen men for field work, it is quite impossible to take care of the situation as well as we would like. However, we shall do the best we can."

It is difficult for the limited force of agents to watch the beer running operations because the breweries, in many instances, have private detectives employed who keep the beer runners constantly informed as to the movements of the agents.

Only when the agents are removed from the neighborhood of a brewery will it operate.

The brew plans are usually equipped with apparatus which enables them to fill a caravan or trucks in a very short time. In four hours of operation it is possible to load twenty trucks, it was said. The work invariably is done at night.

Mr. Perry deplored the lethargy of the state prohibition agents and local police and sheriffs in enforcing the prohibition law.

"These things go on under the very noses of those who are best qualified to act, but they do nothing," he said. "Under such conditions it is not easy to enforce the law."

Highway Board Endorses Small Bond Issue

The State Board of Highways met recently at the Inter-State Fair, Kankakee, Senator Richard R. Menis, Ashburn, Chairman, Chas. M. Hayes,

man, Chicago, F. R. Woollie Vienna,

Arthur R. Hall, Danville, and J. M. Page, Jerseyville, and unanimously recommended Governor Len Small's $100,000,000 Hard Road Bond Issue as a safe, sure and sound business proposition to issue bonds against the anticipated automobile license fees.

The bond law provides first, the completion of the $60,000,000 bond issue system and then in addition about 5000 miles more of trunk line roads.

These two systems when completed will place 99% of the people of the state within five miles of a hard road and 85% directly on the system of approximately 10,000 miles.

The law further provides that no bonds be issued or sold until the roads are contracted for and the money is needed, and then only in such amounts as is necessary to pay for actual construction.

The bonds under both issues are to be paid out of the automobile license fees, both principal and interest, without one cent of tax on the real or personal property of the state.

The automobileists of the state, the men who pay the bills, seem to be willing and anxious to stand the expense and the man who does not own an automobile will not be called upon to pay a cent toward the cost of this line road system because not a cent of tax will be placed on the lands or property outside of the automobiles and trucks.

C. R. Miller, Director of Public Works and Buildings, and Frank T. Sheets, chief engineer, report that the world's record in road construction had been smashed during the past year when one mixer laid 2671 ft. of standard 18-ft concrete pavement in one day and the same outfit made another new record when it laid 10,405 ft. of standard 18-ft concrete pavement in one week. During Governor Small's administration road building has gone steadily forward and the record shows the cost of construction has gone steadily downward under his policy of refusing to let contracts regardless of cost, and insisting that the state receive a dollars' worth of road for every dollar expended. The average cost of one mile of standard 18-foot concrete pavement, including all grading, ordinary bridges and culverts has been $27,500 per mile during Governor Small's administration.

The construction record shows the following mileage: 1921, 400 miles; 1922, 741 miles; 1923, 1085 miles; this year to September 1st, 800 miles.

The board urges the next General Assembly to pass legislation and to provide for appropriations from the automobile license fees to build connection roads to all cities and villages of the state not now on the State Bond Issue Roads.

Burlington

Brewery to Be Closed

The plant of the Burlington Cereal Products company on McHenry st., Burlington, operated by C. A. Dahn, who purchased the same last spring from the Flinke-Uhen Brewing Co., is to be padlocked under the Volstead act for illicit brewing.

"Beer runners, who for the last month have been making Burlington their headquarters, are about to be wiped out.

Clark M. Perry, federal prohibition director, after receiving reports on beer running in the neighboring city, last week sent out an edict to his agents, which is expected to put an end to illicit brewing and transporting there.

"Wipe them out," was Mr. Perry's command.

Agents immediately put into motion the machinery by which evidence is gathered for the grand jury. The brewery at Burlington was watched and a number of saloons were visited. Truck drivers who hauled the real beer to other cities were interrogated.

"We have the goods on them now," said Mr. Perry. "Further violations will simply mean an aggravated case the brewery will be taken away on top of it."

And so another of the fifty remaining breweries in the state, licensed to make near beer, will be stricken from the list, shut down and placed under government seal, under provisions of the Volstead act "pablock" clause.

FARM BUREAU NEWS

Farmers Bear Heavy Portion of School Tax, Survey Shows

Association tuberculosis eradication project.

One thousand, six hundred and sixty-six cattle on an average are tested in Illinois every 24 hours, and out of that number approximately 80, or 2 per cent are found to be tubercular. According to figures compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture, the average for the country is 3.13 per cent.

Lake county is one of the 58 Illinois counties now conducting an organized campaign against tuberculosis. During the month of July, County Veterinarian Grinnell tested 1003 cattle finding 97 reactors.

Last week the Board of Supervisors voted to renew the appropriation of $4,000 made a year ago to conduct the area work on T. B. eradication. They were well pleased with the work for Dr. Grinnell and favorable comments were made on the progress of the work to date.

For example a year ago only 30 herds were under federal supervision compared with 315 herds now. A year ago there were only 23 clean herds in the county compared with 154 clean herds now. Dr. Grinnell has tested 10,000 head of cattle, finding 130 reactors. Over $50,000 in indemnities has already been received by our farmers for these reactors with more to come besides about $35,000 paid for the salvage produced from these animals. We have reason to feel proud of these results accomplished in less than one year.

"Penny Nails."
The term penny in connection with nails is always used in combination with prefixed numerals, such as four-penny, ten-penny, etc., to form an adjective. These adjectives now denote certain arbitrary sizes. Originally, they denoted the price per hundred of nails.

Everingham Finds Farm Bureau Spirit Better Than Ever

I don't think the Farm Bureau spirit and morale has ever been any better than it is at present," said A. C. Everingham who has been speaking at Farm Bureau picnics by arrangement of the Illinois Agriculture Association speakers bureau in commenting on the general atmosphere that has prevailed at the 12 County Farm Bureau picnics at which he has spoken.

Farm Bureau picnic attendance has been larger this year, on the average, according to Mr. Everingham, than ever before.

Lake County people will remember

Mr. Everingham as the speaker at the Farm Bureau County picnic at Diamond Lake, August 22, 1923, when he spoke on Better Community Understanding.

"Baseball has been a popular feature this season," he said. "The crowds taken as a whole have been the largest I have ever had. The people are greatly interested in farm problems, especially in measures intended to bring about equality for agriculture."

T. B. Tests Given to 50,000 Illinois Cattle Each Month

The work of eradicating tuberculosis from dairy herds in Illinois has grown to such an extent within the last few months that approximately 50,000 cattle are now tested each month, according to M. H. Petersen, director of the Illinois Agricultural

WHAT did you say about the new woman being a type? Well, hardly! She may be short-haired, because a majority of women are that today, but she is far from being, in generality, the strong-jawed, hard-visaged, masculine appearing figure which the cartoonists represent her to be. She is as numerous and as interesting in her variety as woman has ever been.

Get acquainted with Judith, the charming little boss of Blue Lake Ranch. You will meet a new woman, a really brand-new sort, one—in this respect not unusual—who would rather be a woman than a man, but, called upon to do a man's part, does it thoroughly. Circumstances called her into a unique line of endeavor. She carried it through in a man's way, the only way it could be done, but she made it more effective by some fascinatingly feminine touches.

Read This Vivid Story of Love and Adventure

Started last week—but for the benefit of those who did not start the first chapter is being reprinted this week—Don't fail to read this thrilling story of the West.

Your "Dollars Do Double Duty" When SPENT AT HOME!

There's only one answer to the question:

"Where can I spend my dollars so that they'll not only benefit me personally by purchasing their full value's worth but where, in the course of time, they'll build for a greater community and make me more satisfied with both my neighbors and my surroundings?"

It Is--- IN ANTIOCH

BECAUSE—Here, and here only, can your dollars do "Double Duty."

First, they'll always get you the necessities of life at a lower cost than you could buy them for elsewhere. The personal interest our merchants take in each patron to see that he or she is always satisfied—often sacrificing profit—makes it possible.

Secondly, not only do your dollars go farthest, but—by trading here and keeping those dollars at home—you're contributing to our fair town's Progress and Prosperity. More schools, more attractive town—are only possible when every citizen puts his or her "shoulder to the wheel" and "pushes" with their "home spent" dollars.

We, the undersigned business and professional interests, always have and always will be strong for anything that is good for the community. But, remember, we need—YOUR COOPERATION!

Jackie Coogan's first Metro picture, "Long Live the King," will arrive at the Crystal theatre Saturday. This unusually beautiful picture, plus Jackie's wonderful acting, lives up to all the advance praise made for it all during the six months of its production in Hollywood.

Suffice it to say that in "Long Live the King" Jackie does some of the greatest work of his short career. For the first time a radical departure has been made in the type of role he portrays. In "Long Live the King" Jackie is a royal prince and he is constantly surrounded by royal splendor.

Judith of BLUE LAKE RANCH

By JACKSON GREGORY

COPYRIGHT BY
CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

In these days with women winning championships in outdoor games and athletic contests and successfully invading lines of endeavor that a past generation had set apart exclusively for men, is it not logical to have a heroine of action who takes a man's part in the management of a big enterprise and brings to bear the qualities of courage, common sense, daring especially care for in making the undertaking a success? It is decidedly logical, particularly in the West where girls on ranches are taught to shoot straight, tame outlaw horses, brand cattle and in general respects be qualified not only to take care of themselves, but to meet any exigency calling for judgment and nerve.

The boys of the Blue Lake outfit were pretty thoroughly disgusted when they learned that Lee was to have a girl for his wife. Opinions changed, however, when a few of Judith's quiet exploits performed under the stress of necessity and without any bravado or sacrifice of womanliness, proved her to be the best man on the big ranch. Judith did not seek the job of management. It was forced upon her through the death of her father and her realization that her foreman was a rascal bent upon wrecking the enterprise in the interests of a HVA competitor.

It was a stupendous task and the girl who could handle it successfully deserved to be the heroine of an exhilarating romance. Judith is a new type of heroine because she is a new type of heroine. She is all the more welcome from the fact that she is not an exaggerated type. There are plenty of girls in the West and elsewhere who given such a grand old father to train them as Judith had, would be able to show the true steel which she exhibited; and, like Judith, would remain sweet and winsome throughout.

Judith will win rewards for all she won the Blue Lake boys. It is only fair to reveal that there was one of those boys who held out against surrender. He had old-fashioned notions of what a woman should be and what a woman can do. With the exception of Judith, he is the most interesting character in the story.

CHAPTER I

Bud Lee Wants to Know

Bud Lee, horse foreman of the Blue Lake ranch, sat upon the gate of the home corral, bullded a cigarette with slow brown fingers, and stared across the broken fields of the upper valley to the rosy glow above the pine-timbered ridge where the sun was coming up. His customary gravity was unusually pronounced.

"If a man's got the hunch an egg is bad," he mused, "is that a good and sufficient reason why he should go poking his fingers inside the shell? I want to know!"

Tommy Burkitt, the youngest wage-earner of the outfit and a profound admirer of all that tactfully, good humor and quick capability which went into the makeup of Bud Lee, approached from the ranch-house on the knoll. "Hi, Bud!" he called. "Trevors wants you. On the jump."

Burkitt stopped at the gate, looking up at Lee. "On the jump, Trevors said," he repeated.

For a moment Lee sat still, his cigarette unlit, his broad black hat perched back upon his close-cropped hair, his eyes serenely contemplative upon the pink of the sky above the pines. Then he slipped from his place and, though each single movement gave an impression of great leisureliness, it was but a flash of time until he stood beside Burkitt.

"Stick around a wee bit, ladie," he said gently, a lean brown hand resting lightly on the boy's square shoulder. "A man can't see what is on the cards until they're tipped, but it's always a fair gamble that between dawn and dusk I'll gather up my string of colts and crowd 'em. If I do, you'll want to come along!"

He smiled at young Burkitt's eagerness and turned away toward the ranch-house and Bayne Trevors, thus putting an early end to an enthusiastic acquiescence.

"They ain't no more men ever foaled like him," meditated Tommy, in an approval so profound as to be little less than out-and-out devotion.

And, indeed, one might ride up and down the world for many a day and not find a man who was Bud Lee's superior in "the things that count."

As tall as most, with sufficient shoulders, a slender body, narrowhipped, he carried himself as perhaps his forebear walked in the days when open forests or sheltered caverns housed them, with a little gracefulness born of the perfect play of superb physical development. His muscles, even in the slight movement, flowed liquidly; he had slipped from his place on the corral gate less like a man than like some great, splendid cat. The skin of hands, face, throat, was very dark, whether by inheritance or because of long exposure to sun and wind, it would have been difficult to say. The eyes were dark, very keen, and yet remarkably grave.

From under their black brows they had the habit of appearing to be reluctantly withdrawn from some great distance to come to rest, steady and calm, upon the man with whom he chanced to be speaking.

The gaunt, sure-footed form was lost to Tommy's eyes; Lee had passed beyond the clump of wild lilac whose glistening, heart-shaped leaves screened the open court about which the ranch-house was built. A strangely elaborate ranch-house, this one, set here so far apart from the world of rich residences. There was a score of rooms in the great, one-story, rambling edifice of rudely squared timbers set in field-stone and cement, rooms now closed and locked; there were flower-gardens still cultivated by Jose, the half-breed; a pretty court with a fountain end many roses, cut upon which a dozen doorways looked; wide verandas with glimpses beyond of fireplaces and long expanse of polished floors. For, until recently, this had been not only the headquarters of Blue Lake ranch, but the home as well of the chief of its several owners, Luke Sanford, whose own efforts alone had made him at forty-five a man to be reckoned with, had followed his fancy here extensively and expensively, allowing himself this one luxury of his many lean, hard years. Then, six months ago, just as his ambitions were stepping to fresh heights, just as his hands were filling with newer, greater endeavor, there had come the mishap in the mountains and Sanford's tragic death.

Lee passed silently through the courtyard and came to the door at the far end. The door stood open; within was the office of Bayne Trevors, general manager. Lee entered, his hat still fast back upon his head. The sound of his boots upon the bare floor caused Trevors to look up quickly. "Hello, Lee," he said quietly. "Wait a minute, will you?"

Quite a different type from Lee, Bayne Trevors was heavy and square and hard. His eyes were the glinting gray eyes of a man who is forceful, dynamic, the sort of man who is a better captain than lieutenant, whose hands are strong to grasp life by the throat and demand that she stand and deliver. Only because of his wide and successful experience of his initiative, of his way of quick, decisive action, suited to a marked executive ability, had Luke Sanford chosen Bayne Trevors as his right-hand man in so colossal a venture as the Blue Lake ranch. Only because of the same pushing, vigorous personality was he this moring general manager, with the unlimited authority of a dictator over a petty principality.

In a moment Trevors lifted his frowning eyes from the table, turning in his chair to confront Lee, who stood leaning in leisurely manner against the door-jamb. "That young idiot wants money again," he growled, his voice as sharp as a scorpion's sting. "What would you say to fifty dollars a head?"

What Would You Say to Fifty Dollars a Head?

sharp and quick as his eyes. "As if I didn't have enough to contend with already," said Lee quietly.

"Meantime young Hampton, I take it?"

Trevors nodded savagely.

"Telegram. Caught it over the line the last thing last night. Well have to sell some horses this time, Lee."

Lee's eyes narrowed imperceptibly. "I didn't plan to do any selling for six months yet," he said, not in exasperation but merely in explanation. "They're not ready."

"How many three-year-olds have you got in your string down in the Big meadow?" asked Trevors crisply. "Counting those eleven Red Duke colts?"

"Counting everything. How many?"

"Seventy-three."

The general manager's pencil wrote upon the pad in front of him "73," then swiftly multiplied it by 50. Lee saw the result, 3,650 set down with the dollar sign in front of it. He said nothing.

"What would you say to fifty dollars a head for them?" asked Trevors, whirling again in his swivel chair. "Three thousand six fifty for the one of you men Bayne Trevors!"

"I am Judith Sanford," she announced briefly, and there was a note in her young voice which went ringing bell-like, through the still air. "Is one of you men Bayne Trevors?"

A quick, shadowy smile came and went upon the lips of Bud Lee. It struck him that she might have said just that way: "I am the queen of England and I am running my own kingdom!" He looked at her with eyes filled with open interest and curiosity, making swift appraisal of the flushed sun-brown cheeks, the confusion of dark, curling hair disturbed by her furious riding, the vivid, red-blooded beauty of her. Mouth and eyes and the very carriage of the dark head upon her superb white throat announced boldly and triumphantly that here was no wax-petaled lily of a lady, but rather a maid whose blood, like the blood of the father before her, was turbulent and hot and must boil like a wild mountain-stream at opposition. Her eyes, a little darker than Trevors', were the eyes of fighting stock.

Trevors, irritated already, turned hard eyes up at her from under corrugated brows. He did not move in his chair. Nor did Lee stir except that now he removed his hat.

"I am Trevors," said the general manager curtly. "And, whether you are Judith Sanford or the queen of Spain, I am busy right now."

"You talk soft with me, Trevors!" cried the girl passionately. "If you want to hold your job five minutes! I'll tolerate none of your high and mighty airs!"

Trevors laughed at her, a sneer in his laugh. "I talk the way I talk," he answered roughly. "If people don't like the sound of it they don't have to listen! Lee, you round up those seventy-three horses and crowd them over the ridge to the lumber camp. Or, if you want to quit, quit now and I'll send a good man."

"Lucky!" scoffed Trevors. "Where's your lady?" That? and he leveled a scornful finger at the girl. "A ranting tough of a female who brings a breath of the stink of her and scolds like a fish-wife . . ."

"Shut up!" said Lee, crossing the room with quick strides, his face thrust forward a little.

"You shut up!" It was Judith's voice on Judah's hand fell upon Bud Lee's shoulder, pushing him aside.

"If I couldn't take care of myself do you think I'd be fool enough to take over a little job like running the Blue Lake? Now— and with blazing eyes she confronted Trevors—"I've got my more nice little things to say, suppose you say them to me!"

Trevors' temper had had ample provocation and now stood naked and hot in his hard eyes. In a blind instant he laid his tongue to a word which would have sent Bud Lee at his throat. But Judith stood between them and, like an echo to the word, ename the resounding snap as Judith's open palm smote Trevor's cheek.

"You wildcat!" he cried. And his two big hands flew out, seeking her shoulders.

"Stand back!" called Judith. "Just because you are bigger than I am, don't make any mistake! Stand back I tell you!"

Bud Lee marvelled at the swiftness with which her hand had gone into her blouse and out again, a small-caliber revolver in the steady fingers now. He had never known a man himself possibly excepted—quicker at the draw.

But Bayne Trevors, from whose make-up cowardice had been omitted, laughed sneeringly at her and did not stand back. His two hands out before him, his face crimson, he came on.

"Fool!" cried the girl. "Fool!"

Still he came on. Lee gathered himself to spring.

Judith fired. Once, and Trevors' right arm fell to his side. A second time, and Trevors' left arm hung limp like the other. The crimson was gone from his face now. It was dead white. Little beads of sweat began to form on his brow.

Lee turned astonished eyes to Judith.

"Now you know who's running this outfit, don't you?" she said coolly.

"Lee, have a team hitched up to carry Trevors wherever he wants to go. He's not hurt much; I just winged him. And go tell the cook about my breakfast!"

But Lee stood and looked at her. He had no remark to offer. Then he turned to go upon her bidding. As he went down to the bunk-house he said softly under his breath: "Well, I'm d—d. I most certainly am!"

"I can't, can't I?" she jeered at him.

"Don't you fool yourself for one little minute! Pack your little trunk and hammer the trail!"

"I'll do nothing of the kind. Why, I don't know even who you are! You say that you are Judith Sanford!" He shrugged his massive shoulders. "How do I know what game you are up to?"

"You can't bluff me for two seconds, Bayne Trevors," she blazed at him. "You know who I am, all right. Send for Sunny Harper," she ended sharply.

"Discharged three months ago," Trevors told her with a show of teeth.

"Johnny Dodge, then," she commanded. "Or Ted Bruce or Bill Kelley. They all know me."

"Fired long ago, all of them," laughed Trevors, "to make room for competent men."

"To make room for more crooks!" she cried, her own brown hands balled into fists scarcely less hard than Trevors' had been. Then for the third time she turned upon Lee. "You are one of his new thieves, I suppose?"

"Thank you, ma'am," said Bud Lee gravely.

"Well, answer me. Are you?"

"No, ma'am," he told her, with no hint of a twinkle in his calm eyes.

"Leastwise, not his exactly. You see, I do all my killing and highway robbery on my own books. It's just a way I have."

"Well," Judith sniffed, "I don't know. It will be a jolt to me if there's a square man left on the ranch! Go down to the bunk-house and tell the cook I'm here and I'm hungry as a wildcat. Tell him I'm hunting for a wildcat, through the sun-brown cheeks, the confusion of dark, curling hair disturbed by her furious riding, the vivid, red-blooded beauty of her. Mouth and eyes and the very carriage of the dark head upon her superb white throat announced boldly and triumphantly that here was no wax-petaled lily of a lady, but rather a maid whose blood, like the blood of the father before her, was turbulent and hot and must boil like a wild mountain-stream at opposition. Her eyes, a little darker than Trevors', were the eyes of fighting stock.

Trevors, irritated already, turned hard eyes up at her from under corrugated brows. He did not move in his chair. Nor did Lee stir except that now he removed his hat.

$15,000 in Prizes for Better Home Lighting

The improvement of eyesight, the promotion of higher-grade living conditions and greater all around home comfort for the American family are principles underlying the "Better Home Lighting Activity" which is being sponsored by the National Lighting Educational Committee.

Prizes ranging from $15,000 model electric home to college scholarships, will be offered to the school children of the entire nation by this Committee.

Residents of this community and surrounding territory are to have the same opportunity of competing for these awards as are those of other sections of the country.

The "Better Home Lighting Plan," as constituted, has been endorsed by prominent educators and others interested in the conservation of eyesight and the improvement of living conditions. Schools throughout the nation are to co-operate in the movement because of its educational nature.

Various mediums will be utilized to bring the entire subject to the attention of every person. To accentuate interest in the various local communities in the 48 states, arrangements are being made to distribute local and district prizes. In fact, contestants for the national awards will be chosen from the ranks of winners in the district and local contests.

The competition will be in the nature of a home lighting essay contest conducted among the children of high school age or under, who are enrolled in the public, parochial and private schools. District judges will be named to choose winners in the local communities and districts, while the judges for the national prizes will include some of the leading educational authorities in the country.

William McAndrew, Superintendent of Schools in Chicago, Mrs. William Brown Melony, editor of the Delinquent, B. C. Forbes, editor of Forbes Magazine, Miss Sarah L. Rhodes, principal of Public School No. 28 in Brooklyn and Franklin T. Griffith, President of the National Electric Light Association have been named judges. To these will be added a prominent illuminating engineer and one other.

The principal national award of a $15,000 home was arranged as the result of a prize competition among five thousand architects in co-operation with the American Institute of Architects.

In addition to the electric, home and college scholarships, many other prizes of smaller value will constitute the list of national awards.

Hints for the HouseholdRHUBARB MARMALADE

1 quart of raw rhubarb cut in small pieces
4 seedless oranges
3 pounds of sugar
1 tablespoon of orange juice
1 tablespoon of grated orange rind
Put all in a preserving kettle. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Cook slowly until thick. This takes about two hours.

Strawberries, sugar and rhubarb, cooked together this way, makes a wonderful jam.

GRAPE JELLY

Wash and stem grapes. Cook the grapes down. Then strain. To every cup of juice add 1 cup of sugar. Bring to the boiling point and then boil exactly 20 minutes.

Put in glasses and seal after it has set.

GRAPE CONSERVE

1 pound of grapes
1/2 pound of sugar
1 cup of chopped raisins
1 cup of chopped nuts
Bring the grapes and sugar to a boil. They boil ten minutes—add the nuts and raisins and cook another 10 minutes.

COOKING HINTS

Cold cooked liver, kidney or sweetbreads mixed with salad dressing makes a fine sandwich paste.

Where tomato sauce is called for, it is very much quicker to use canned tomato soup.

Save canned pineapple juice to flavor cornstarch pudding.

Black walnuts give to dishes a deliciously different flavor that any hostess loves to obtain.

Black walnut add immensely when served with fruit salad.

Salted black walnuts and pecans make an agreeable change for the nut dish.

LUMP SAVER

When gravy, cream sauce of custards lump, heat vigorously with egg heater for a moment and lumps will disappear.

DATE SCUFFLE

2 eggs
1 cup of sugar
1 teaspoon of baking powder
1 cup of walnuts quartered
1 cup of dates cut in two
Mix in order written. Bake about 1/2 hour in moderate oven. Serve with whipped cream.

A New Meat Loaf

This meat loaf is neither hot or cold. Take—
1 pound of uncooked ham, ground
1 pound of fresh pork, ground
1 cup of soft bread crumbs
1 cup of milk
1 or 2 eggs well beaten, a little onion and some pepper (no salt)
Bake in slow oven for one hour.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

To Steam Velvet
As the winter months approach we are all thinking of clothes. Some of our old velvet dresses or goods could be economically put to use if we only knew how to steam them. Here is a method:

Heat an iron and place it on its side. Fold several thicknesses of wet cloth over the iron and as soon as the steam begins to rise, draw the velvet slowly back and forth across the edge of the iron, right side up. As soon as the marks caused by crushing disappears place the velvet on a smooth surface to dry.

STAINED GLASSES

Stained glasses are very nearly as undesirable as nicked china. The nicked china can not be made right, but the stained glasses can.

Take either a mixture of vinegar and salt or lemon and salt and rub well over the stain. Then wash thoroughly and glass will resume its clearness.

Use for Clothes Pins

Use pinch clothes pins for pinning bed room curtains back. The clothes pins can be made very pretty by painting them to blend with colors in the room.

COCKLEBURS FOUND POISONOUS TO LIVESTOCK AND POULTRY

Cocklebur plants are poisonous to swine, cattle, sheep, and chickens, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. This weed has long been suspected, but many persons thought that deaths reported from this cause were produced by the mechanical action of the burs rather than by the toxic effect of the plant. While the burs may produce some mechanical injury, and while the seeds are very poisonous, stock poisoning, the department says, is caused by feeding on the very young plants before the development of true leaves.

To avoid losses from this cause the most important thing is to prevent the animals from eating the weed. If there's a shortage of good they may eat enough of the young cockleburs to cause serious results. Feeding milk to pigs immediately after they have eaten the weed has proved beneficial, probably because of fat content. Good results also may be expected by feeding them bacon grease, lard, or linseed oil.

A Fleet of Vehicles in Your Service

No. 13 in a series of statements about the Company's business.

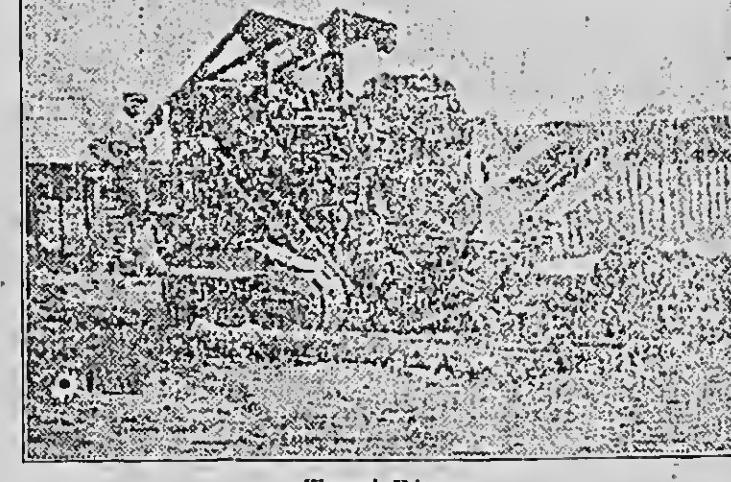

PROMPT transportation of materials and men is necessary in serving 252,981 customers with gas or electricity.

For this purpose Public Service Company has 363 vehicles of various types in daily use, traveling last year, in your service, 3,028,000 miles.

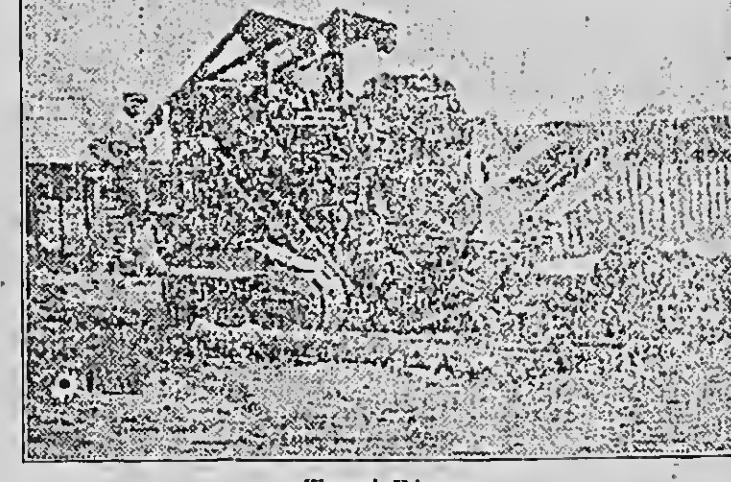

These include such labor saving devices as the pole-hole digger, consisting of a 3 1/2-ton truck on which is mounted an air compressor and air cylinder with boom for supporting the auger motor and orange peel auger. When the hole is dug this boom is used to handle the pole.

Trailers for handling transformers and other heavy and bulky equipment, heavy duty trucks, gas fitters' trucks, utility and special service trucks, cars and motorcycles, together with tractors for use in erecting steel towers, form this unusual fleet.

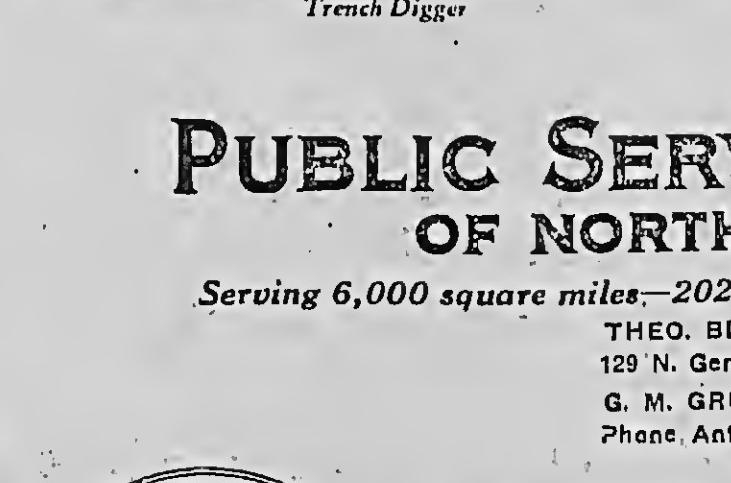

Without these many different types of vehicles it would not be possible to respond to your needs with the promptness that is the Company's policy.

Flaming Barriers

If you have ever seen a forest fire, you will not need to ask what is the biggest scene or series of scenes in this picture. And there is a genuine forest fire in "Flaming Barriers." The picture was so timed that it was made when actual fires were raging in the northern California timber lands and the whole company rushed to location in time to take advantage of them. One of the big scenes shows an aeroplane caught in the fierce upward draught from the flames, with a girl in sole charge of the machine. Below there is a yawning furnace and ahead and behind stretch the flames. Another big scene is one in which Antonio Moreno drives his car across from both sides and the tips of the flames forming an arch above his head. There are scenes in this picture wherein the heroine is working just as hard to defeat
